GEORGE BOXLEY

"He Led the Way"

In April, 1827 George Boxley made the first permanent settlement in what was to become Adams township. Boxley brought his family to a cabin on the knoll which now overlooks the town of Sheridan. Boxley had been a man of wealth in his native Virginia, but his strong opposition to slavery led him to aid the slaves of a neighbor to escape. Discovered, he was convicted under the penal laws of Virginia and sentenced to hang. Boxley escaped on the day set for his execution and fled to the wilds of Pennsylvania, and later to Missouri and Ohio, always living in fear of being recognized and returned to the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia where a price had been placed upon his head.

It was with this price upon his head that Boxley led his family to the wild forests of Hamilton county, parts of which were known only to the Indians. Forging their way through virgin forest along a trail the Indians had told about, the Boxley family came upon a clear area with a low hill nearby, and it was here that the family decided to settle. This, then, was the beginning of Adams township.

WELCOME

The people of Sheridan bid a hearty welcome to all who are joining in our One Hundredth Birthday Party. We have made every effort to assure that your visit with us will be both enjoyable and memorable.

To our native sons and daughters who have been away for some years—welcome home. No doubt you will look with approval upon the steps forward that have been taken in your absence. We hope as you walk down the streets of our community that each will hold many fond memories of the past.

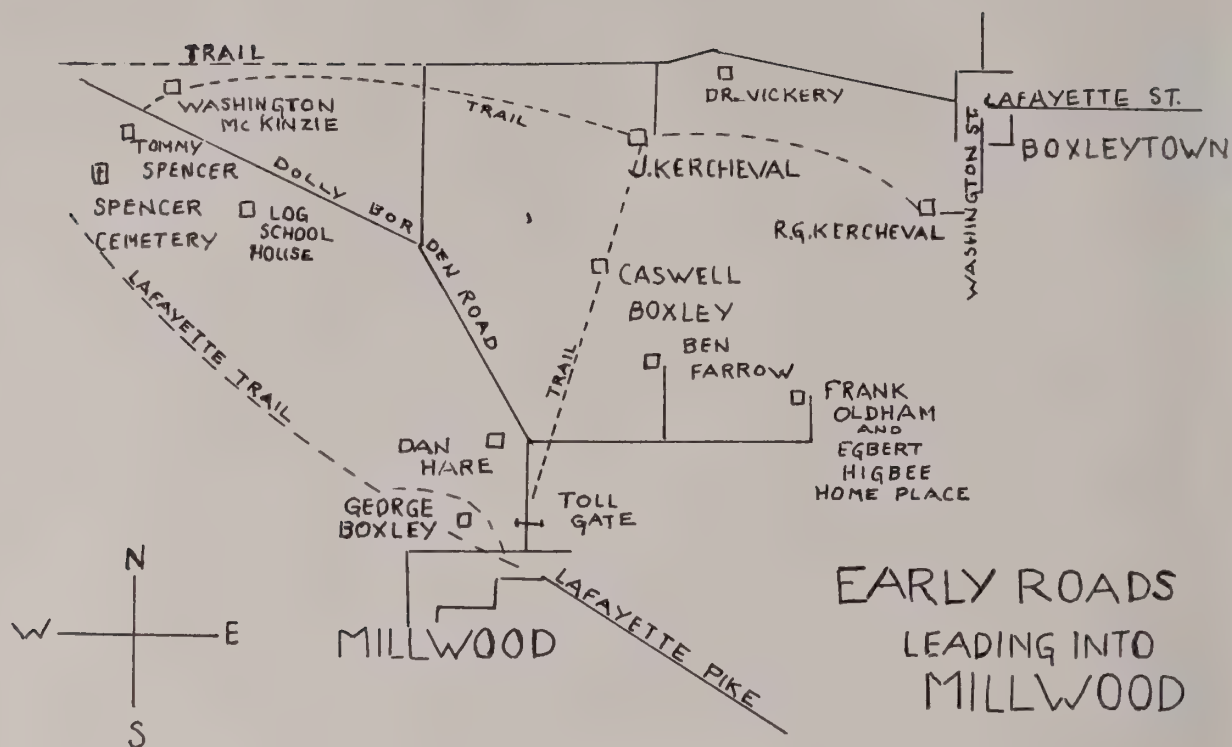

To our other visitors from near and far, we believe you will be pleasantly impressed with our quiet little community with its neighborly rural atmosphere. We think you will agree that it is a fine place to live, and we sincerely hope that you will visit us again soon. You will always be welcome.

EARLY SETTLERS

The first settlement comprising more than a single family was made soon after the arrival of the Boxley family. Thomas Spencer, John Blanch, James L. Masters, Z. Acord and Washington McKensy settled a little west of the present site of Boxley. Other men joined this settlement soon. Since only two trails, one from Noblesville to Lafayette and the other from Strawtown to Lafayette, were the only roads in these early times, the settlers were forced to cut their own roads, avoiding ponds and swamps by staying on high ground. When they came to the creeks the old corduroy bridges were built by laying two large logs parallel across the "slash" a few feet apart, and laying smaller logs crosswise over these. Strong stakes held the first and last logs in place and, in some cases, dirt was thrown over the surface to make it smooth.

Soon after, between 1831 and 1837, the settlement at Bakers Corner was begun. Schools were taught in private homes, supported by the parents of the pupils under the subscription plan. The people of this early community were largely of the Friends Church, though there were also a few Wesleyan Methodists among them.

The Founder

EGBERT HIGBEE

A TOWN IS BORN

It was not until more than a score of years after the first settlement that the town of Sheridan, first to be known as Millwood, began to take shape in the mind of Egbert Higbee.

Egbert Higbee was born near Cincinnati, Ohio in 1832. He was but four years old when his parents settled on a farm northeast of the site where Higbee would later establish Millwood. It was in this wild frontier that Higbee grew to manhood, witnessing the steady influx of emigrants from the east who gradually sapped the savageness from the wilderness, clearing the rich soil for their farms. Dimly in the back of his mind was the knowledge that some day a new town would rise on the seven hills of Buttonwood Swamp.

Finally, in 1860, Higbee purchased the land south of the pike running east and west from Jeremiah Dunn and laid out the town of Millwood. For some reason, however, the town was not platted until April, 1866 though Higbee had laid out the community and established his home on the hill where the library now stands. Various theories for this delay have been advanced—possibly it took six years to clear the land and possibly the war between the states slowed early progress—the true reason is unrecorded and unknown.

At any rate, it was not until April 21, 1866 that the town of Millwood was surveyed by M. W. Essington. The town, comprised of 20 lots, each 66 by 132 feet, was recorded at 9 a. m., April 23, 1866.

The alleys are $16\frac{1}{2}$ feet, streets $49\frac{1}{2}$ feet, except Main Street which is $39\frac{3}{4}$ feet wide. This constituted Higbee's original Millwood addition. Bounded by East Street, Main Street on the north, and Mill Street on the south.

HOW SHERIDAN GOT ITS NAME

Four names were suggested for the new plot of ground laid out by Egbert Higbee: Phiniasville by P. G. Pearson, Higbeeville by Egbert Higbee, Pioneer City by Caswell Boxley, and Millwood by Jonas Pearson, Jeremiah Dunn, Dr. Henry Moore, Cyrus Jessup, J. T. McMinds, Eliel Jessup, Isaac Underwood, Hamilton Emmons and John Wilson.

A vote was taken, the location of the meeting was not recorded. The name of Millwood was selected after some deliberation.

Years later a post office was to be established at Millwood. In petitioning for a post office, the people discovered there was already a Millwood post office in Indiana, and it would be necessary to change the name. Due to strong influence of Civil War veterans, the name Sheridan was selected in honor of Phil Sheridan, celebrated Civil War general. This took place sometime between 1881 and 1885.

BUT PERHAPS IT WAS THIS WAY

We came to this location, and thought of settling down
And then before we knew it, we had ourselves a town
We named our new town Millwood, and Millwood it would stay

Then one day a train came in, and much to our dismay
Our mail was going Southward, It couldn't come on thru

Because you see in our fair State, were Millwoods, one and two

We were two, and they were one, and as you might have guessed

We called a little meeting, to choose a new name best.
The whole blamed town was gathered, in that old meeting hall,

Just talkin' names, and names, and names, a name was had by all.

The meeting came to order, it was such a bitter fight.
A soldier boy then took the floor and said with all his might,

"Since your all a' fussin', about which name should be;
Why don't you name it after Grant—maybe even Lee!"
Laughter filled the room at once, the boy in blue sat down,

The chairman motioned to those boys, "Let's have them name the town,".

"We'd like to name it SHERIDAN, Sir, if you could all agree

For we like it a little more than Grant, and a whole lot better than LEE,".

—DOROTHY GRACE STROUGH.

EARLY HORSE SHOW

Throngs of people crowded Sheridan for this horse show sometime in the 1890s. Reading from the left, the buildings are the State Bank at the corner of Fourth and Main, Hip Sing's Cafe and Hotel, Stoops' Bake Shop, Bill Beard's Central Barber Shop, Charlie Couch's Grocery Store, J. M. Richardson's Boots and Shoes, and Cox and Scott Furniture and Undertaking Store on the alley. Across the alley was Wes Williams' Meat Market. The old dirt sreet can be clearly seen in the foreground.

ORGANIZATION OF HAMILTON COUNTY

Hamilton county is a part of the land which was included in the New Purchase. This purchase was outlined in a treaty at St. Mary's, Ohio, October 2, 1818, between Lewis Cass, Jonathan Jennings, governor of Indiana, and Benjamin Park, commissioners, and the Delaware Indians, the latter ceding all their territory in Indiana to the United States, agreeing to deliver the possession in 1821.

Hamilton county was organized May 12, 1823 with seven townships; Noblesville, Washington, Clay, Fall Creek, Wayne, White River and Delaware. The total population was 1,705.

Adams township, which includes 48 of the 400 square miles originally designated as Hamilton county, was not organized by the board of commissioners until November, 1833. At this time population was very limited in this northwest corner of the county and Adams and Jackson townships were united for voting purposes for a time.

Adams township was the last of all the townships in Hamilton county to develop her great resources. The township is peculiarly located. No stream of water flows through Adams township, but her broad and fertile fields are the sources of three different streams: Cicero Creek flowing to the northeast, Eagle Creek flowing to the southwest, and Sugar Creek flowing to the northwest. A survey by the Monon Railroad shows this watershed to be the highest point between the Wabash River at Delphi and the White River at Broad Ripple.

The Town of Sheridan stands at the very summit of this elevation. Indeed, many places may be found in Sheridan where the water seems to hesitate as to which route it will take in its journey to the sea.

GROWTH OF A COMMUNITY

Date of Incorporation

The town of Sheridan, first known as Millwood, was incorporated in 1886. Owing to the fact that all the municipal records were burned in the great conflagration of May 4, 1913, there cannot be obtained much of the early history of this incorporation, but it is known that the following served as clerks and part of the time as clerks and treasurers of the place: A. C. Scott, Ambrose Colby, W. E. Clements, N. W. Cowgill, E. M. Richardson, F. A. Lovell, Oscar Macy, I. N. Hinshaw, Charles E. Crouch, W. J. Woods and J. W. Lindley.

The officers in 1915 were: President of the board, W. S. Bradfield; town clerk-treasurer, A. E. Dickey; other members of the board, W. A. Scott, Marshall Billings; town marshal, John T. McCarty. The bonded indebtedness of the incorporation was at this date $9,560. The town at one time owned its own electric light plant but it was sold in 1912. In 1913 the town erected a two story brick city hall, costing $6,500, in which are the council rooms, town offices and city jail, as well as the fire department and its equipment.

FIRST IN ADAMS TOWNSHIP

The first marriage in Adams township united Stephen Blevens and Elsie McKinsey.

The first white child born in Adams township was Vinton Spencer in 1830.

The first roads through Adams township were formerly Indian trails running from Strawtown to Lafayette and from Noblesville to Lafayette. The junction of both roads passing within a stones throw of George Boxley's land, in fact, the Lafayette trail actually crossed his land in 1830, but was eventually relocated to the south boundary of Pioneer Hill. This road was later called the Pike, also known as the Thorntown road.

The first tavern in Adams township was owned and operated by Addison Boxley.

The first saw mill and grist mill in Adams township was owned and operated by Robert Drake, 1861.

The first election held in Adams township was conducted in the home of Thomas P. Boxley, in October, 1836.

The first justice of the peace in Adams township was Reuben Tansey.

The first township trustee was Caswell Boxley, 1859 to 1862. Second was Fred Smith, 1863 to 1864. Third was Washington McKenzie, 1865 to 1867.

The first Masonic Lodge in Adams township was The Fidelity Lodge No. 309, A. F. and A. M., organized May 26, 1854, located in Boxleytown. Moved to Sheridan and organized May 26, 1864, by Dr. John Ross.

The first settlement in Adams township was made by Thomas Spencer, John Blanch, James L. Masters, Z. Acord and Washington McKinsey. The second settlement was made by James Mann, Thomas and William Harbaugh, Payton Harris and Reuben Tansey. And later James Harbaugh and Eben Teter settled with this group. They were located in then what was known as the Boxley swamps. James Kercheval arrived 1839, Robert G. Kercheval arrived 1855, and the six families from Hillsboro, Highland county, Ohio, Sugartree Ridge, Thomas Greathouse, Thomas Remsen, Joseph Beard, Dan Hare, James Emery, and Thomas Kercheval, arrived in the 1860's.

The first fair was an agricultural fair in 1875. Officers were Benjamin, Hadley, president; Ellis Hutchens, secretary; Robert Kercheval, treasurer; Ben Edwards was general superintendent. The fair was held on the land of Eber Teter.

NATURAL GAS IN SHERIDAN

AN EARLY GAS WELL

The effects of natural gas on the economic development on our community were remarkable. Gas was first discovered on the Jacob Mace property on West Third Street in 1888. The gas from this well was first used for illumination, and later for gas fire places by people in the area of West Third Street.

The discovery of gas in this area caused a rapid increase in the industries locating in Sheridan. These included: Sheridan Brick Works, Sheridan Glass and Manufacturing, Thistlethwaite Tile and Brick, Sheridan Wagon Factory, Symons Sorghum, and several small brick plants.

The fad grew to the stage where homes and industries all were depending on gas. But supply was not sufficient, and after approximately 10 years, the supply failed.

Gas was piped to neighboring areas, and within a short time, the reckless use of the supply caused the loss of pressure in the gas fields.

Cases of suffocation and explosions were numerous, and finally meters and state inspectors were necessary. The "flame beaux," an open pipe with gas burning continually and used for outside light, was made illegal in 1898. A "jumbo burner," an outside light enclosed in glass, was allowed between 5 p. m. and 8 a. m.

Ample pressure was maintained until about 1905 or 1906, when supply began diminishing and the gas age in this area became history. Gas was used in Sheridan for a time after this date, but continually decreased.

Frank, Clark and Ted Colby of Frank Colby and Sons were the last to conduct a gas business in Sheridan.

Some of the first drillers were Charles Murdock, Sam Churchill, Grant and Frank Colby, Bill McKenzie and a few others.

THE GREAT FIRE OF MAY 4, 1913

FIRE AREA NORTH OF CORA AVENUE

From the very beginning of Millwood and over the years, our community has experienced many fires, one or two of a serious nature, but mostly of very little consequence.

In the early years of this century the Thistlethwaite prairie (the area adjacent to the railroad on both sides) was covered with all kinds of buildings. Practically all of these structures were built entirely of wood, most of them being of an early vintage, carelessly maintained, and, in some cases, in disrepair. The roofs were of shingle or wood sheeting covered with tar paper or pitch, all inflammable.

The stores were filled with shelves, showcases and counters, all made of wood. The alleys were usually littered with discarded boxes, paper and other refuse, and the areaway provided storage for kindling, coal and frequently odds and ends offering a natural pathway for fire.

A major menace was the by-products of the lumber mills and carriage company—blocks, chips, shavings, and, above all, sawdust in endless heaps. The barns and stables were also filled with inflammable materials in large quantities—hay, straw, feed, harness and an ample supply of explosive cobwebs. These and many other hazards all added to the peril of fire that lurked in every nook of these buildings.

Sheridan had no fire regulations, no volunteer firemen, no water hydrants; in fact the only protection at this time was a two-wheel chemical truck, not large enough for a real emergency.

No one was aware of the great conflagration that was about to descend that Sunday, May 4, 1913. At 12 noon church services were over and residents were entertaining thoughts of Sunday dinner.

George Drake, returning home from his mill on South Main Street, noticed smoke coming from the rear yard of the Weaver Lumber Company, which lay along the north side of the railroad tracks, fronting on the west side of Main Street. Rushing to the town hall at Fifth and Main Streets, Drake reported a fire had broken out in the lumber yard.

At the first sound of the alarm bell a few spectators arrived at the rear of the lumber yard on Cora Avenue, and one was reported to have commented that the fire could have been put out in minutes with a bucket of water. The marshal arrived to remove the chemical truck and after a slight delay, the truck was pulled onto Cora Avenue, but a jet of flame shot across the street scattering the wouldbe firefighters.

Within minutes the whole north and west end of the lumber yard became a raging inferno. With high winds fanning the blaze, the heat became so intense on Cora

FIRE AREA SOUTH OF FIFTH STREET

Avenue that the chemical truck was left to burn.

Flames were shooting skyward amid a shower of sparks. Crowds began to gather quickly, all that were willing being pressed into service pumping water from nearby wells or carrying water in buckets to the men fighting the fire. The marshal, realizing the hopelessness of retaining the fire at this point because of the intense heat, ordered all fire fighters to the front of the lumber company to wet down all roofs and store fronts. But by the time ladders were set up for use, the heat had become so terrific that no attempt was made to cover the roofs. Showers of red hot cinders were falling across Main street. The wind-driven flames were devouring the whole section and streams of flaming particles passed high overhead.

Firefighters who were being subjected to the blistering heat and dense smoke were ordered to the northeast corner of Cora Avenue and Main Street to halt the blaze at that point. Showers of cinders, blazing bits of shingles, wood sparks the size of tin cups and black, suffocating smoke were being blown across Main Street in the direction of the Humphrey & Cruze Buggy Company. The fire fighters were forced to flee for their lives.

With a sudden updraft the roaring flames jumped across the railroad tracks sending a mass of burning materials against the old wooden jail and fire bell tower.

Within minutes both yielded to the flames. At this moment three separate fires were burning, the cleaning plant and immense pile of lumber on Ohio Street, the area south of Cora Avenue and west of Main Street, and the Humphrey & Cruze Buggy Company.

The fire spread north of Cora Avenue to Mace's Meat Market and the Horseshoe Libery Stable, burning both buildings rapidly. The billowing flames burst through the livery stable roof and burning hay was blown into the air, setting fire to the McCarty and Burton Plumbing Shop, and spreading to the Bradfield and Mitchell building and the Nora Bennett home. One building was blown up with dynamite to prevent spread of the fire to the Ed Thistlethwaite home.

In desperation any merchandise worth saving was carried into the street, only to burn later. Realizing the whole town was in danger, residents called for help from Indianapolis, and fire trucks were dispatched on flat cars by the Monon, but there were no water hydrants and the machines sat helplessly by after arriving here.

By 2:45 p. m. burning fire brands were threatening the business district to the north and east. Some businessmen were preparing to move out, while others recruited help to stand guard on the roofs of their buildings, putting out the brands as they landed. In the meantime firebrands passed overhead, striking the people of the Wesleyan Methodist Church and destroying the church and parsonage, and falling still farther away, setting fire to eight homes that were extinguished.

Residents along Georgia Street had started to carry their household goods into the street. In the excitement great many things were broken and some valuables noted.

The firefighters made their final stand at the Redman hall, concentrating their efforts in saving that building on the north side of Fifth Street. The structure was of brick, but the window frames, doors and airway were wood. Saving this building probably saved the remainder of the town. Water was used to wet down the wooden parts and one firefighter reported later, "The acrid fumes from the scorched wooden airway were so nauseating and eye burning that it was almost beyond human endurance to withstand." Intense heat and choking smoke only added to the misery of the men protecting the building.

By 5 p. m. the fire had reached its peak and begun to recede, and by 6 p. m. the whole area was a black, smouldering ruin. Streets were filled with glowing embers, debris and broken glass.

Businessmen affected by the fire were stunned and heartsick. Many had no insurance to cover their losses. The whole picture was one of gloom and confusion. Only the most optimistic knew rebuilding and time would heal the wounds of "a catastrophe long remembered by those valiant men who endangered their lives to save our town."

The true story of how the fire started may never be known, but several factors contributed to the disaster. A southwest wind with gusts of 50 to 60 miles per hour blew all afternoon. The area was highly susceptible to fire. The people were indifferent to the fire hazard. The fire fighting equipment was inadequate. More than 20 businesses were destroyed in the blaze, and even more regrettable, many irreplaceable town records were lost when the town hall burned.

INDUSTRY

Many of the very early industries are left unmentioned in this brief review of Sheridan history, but it could be said that the name of Millwood was well taken in the early days. Wood played a very important part in early development in the form of saw mills, which produced lumber, barrel staves and railroad ties, to mention a few of the major products.

Early Sheridan also boasted carriage and buggy manufacturers, and tile and brick were also important products of industry in the community.

Indiana Condensed Milk Company

However, the single industry that truly "put Sheridan on the map" was the Indiana Condensed Milk Company. The company was established in 1900 by W. N. Wilson, succeeding an old butter works that had stood here for years.

The founder was killed soon afterward, however, in the explosion of pasteurizing equipment and it remained for his son, Taylor Wilson, to develop the business to its great international standing.

Taylor Wilson was truly a brilliant person. Under his guiding hand, the company grew to fantastic proportions. The intake of milk at the Sheridan plant doubled many times over and dairy farming became the major agricultural activity of this area.

Wilson's Milk became known and used the world over. Large firms had contracts with the company to supply them with its product. The untimely death of Taylor Wilson while only in his mid-30s of age undoubtedly was a heavy blow to the concern.

Although their product continued to be prominent for many years, the Sheridan plant was finally sold to Kraft Foods, Inc., in 1954.

FIRST BUSINESS MEN IN MILLWOOD, 1866

Dr. Moore established the first store, this was a general store, in which was kept for sale a little of everything.

James Heatherington started a store on the west side of Main St.

P. Q. Pearson and John Wilson went into the harness business.

Caswell Boxley started his store on the northeast corner of 2nd and Main.

Hamilton Emmons started the first drug store in town.

John Francis established the first grocery store.

May Emmons was the first to start in the millinery business.

Uncle Tom Kercheval and wife had the first hotel.

Mr. Saxmon was the first undertaker, shop at the corner of Georgia and 3rd.

From the late sixties and early seventies to 1886 the following enterprises were founded in Sheridan:

Kraft Foods

The Sheridan plant of Kraft Foods is devoted to the manufacture and packaging of Kraft cheese spreads. These products are to be found in groceries throughout the country.

Biddle Industries

In the decade and one half since its founding in 1944, Biddle Screw Products has grown to be one of the most important industries in Sheridan. The firm actually began in the basement of a Cleveland apartment building where Kenneth Biddle, a graduate of Sheridan High School and native of this area, was living. From that basement the business grew to a plant in the Cleveland area, and when still more room was needed, Plant No. 2 of B & S Screw Products was established at Sheridan in 1944. Shortly afterward, the partnership was dissolved and the Sheridan plant became Biddle Screw Products. A sister firm, Biddle Manufacturing was established in 1955.

The Biddle industries employ about 175 people at the present time and do specialized screw machine work for large corporations.

Russell Pickett and Sons

One of the best known poultry firms in the Midwest is Russell Pickett and Sons of Sheridan. The firm ships poultry and eggs all over the United States as well as to foreign countries on occasion.

The firm was established by the late Russell Pickett at Bakers Corner in 1920, later moving to Noblesville. The poultry was moved to Sheridan in 1943 and has become one of the community's outstanding industries.

Wagon and Buggy shop, by George Dixon; the grist mill, in 1872, by Pearson & Company; the cooper shop of Joseph Beard on Mill Street, the saw mill of Mace & Remson, saw mill by Owens Brothers; a tile factory by Eli Hiatt, 1874; brick plant by Fristoe Brothers; a tile and brick plant, by Henry Thistlewaite; a stove factory, where the Methodist church now stands; the heading factory, in 1886, by Eber Teter & Company, and a planing mill by Duncan, Baker & Company.

Ed Thistlewaite elevator and mill, 1872, operated by Stahl and Drake.

Saw mill by James H. Emmons, 1872. The Harding mill by J. H. Flanagan, 1872.

David Foight Drugs, 1867. Furniture store owned by Antrim & Campbell, 1886.

The Palmer Lumber Company established in 1886, owned by George Palmer.

A molasses factory established in 1889, by George Simon.

BEAVER GRAVEYARD

The Beaver Graveyard was the first to be established in Millwood; the location selected was the former home site of Egbert Higbee. This graveyard was in existence from 1866 to 1875. It was abandoned in 1876 and moved to a site south of Jolietville, Indiana. All burials were made from 1876 to 1902 at Spicewood, Boxley and Spencer Graveyards. The term cemetery was not used until the incorporation of Crown View.

CROWN VIEW CEMETERY

Crown View Cemetery was begun on October 23, 1901, with an organization meeting for incorporating a cemetery here. J. G. Antrim was elected president and F. G. Kassebaum secretary pro tem. This meeting appointed a committee of John M. Cox, Elmer Myers, J. M. Griffin, J. G. Antrim, Samuel Wallingford, J. C. Newby and Quincy Vickery to secure an option on fifteen acres, more or less, of land suitable for a cemetery.

Articles of Association were soon adopted by a list of 31 incorporators. On November 30, 1901, a tract of land, comprising eleven and six-tenths acres was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Hiram McKinzie for the consideration of $1,450.

Hadley Stafford was contracted to build the hand-hewn stone chapel and the combination tool house and vault, the latter to be used for temporary storing of a body if burial was delayed. Dedication services were conducted on Sunday afternoon, June 21, 1903, with a dedicatory address by a minister and a program of music by the Sheridan High School chorus.

The first burial was that of Xenia Colby, twelve-year-old daughter of Grant Colby.

In 1921, as an Arbor Day project, the Progress Club planted 63 Norway maples along the highway creating "Memorial Drive," each tree being planted in memory of some person. In 1922 an area was dedicated to the memory of those who lost their lives in the service of their country.

Presidents have been J. G. Antrim, John M. Cox, T. L. Collins, E. J. Mendenhall, Dr. Roe King and Gus Duchemin. The first treasurer was J. L. Vickery and the first secretary, F. G. Kassebaum. The offices were combined and following Kassebaum were W. J. Woods, A. M. Stephenson, Frank M. Foulke and Hester L. Foust. Sextons have been Milton Hiatt, Everett Godby, Harry Hammack, Clarence Gellinger and Carl Spear.

Burials in 1959 totalled 61, making a total of 2,510 interments. The cemetery is well kept and the community considers it a place of beauty.

BANKS

STATE BANK OF SHERIDAN—FOURTH AND MAIN

Several banks have operated in Sheridan at various times, but only one, the American State Bank of Sheridan, remains in operation today.

The first bank, the State Bank of Sheridan, was organized in 1886 by John H. Cox who was elected president of the institution. The original capital was $10,000. This bank was located just east of Main Street on Second Street where the Ethel King residence now stands.

The First National Bank of Sheridan was established in 1900 by John H. Cox, who was also president of this institution. The original capital was $15,000.

The Edward Thistlethwaite private bank of Sheridan was organized in 1897 with Edward Thistlethwaite as president, and Charles Thistlethwaite, vice-president. The original capital was $20,000. This bank ceased operation in 1902.

The Farmer's National Bank of Sheridan was organized June 2, 1902 by a substantial list of stockholders within an original capital of $30,000. The first officers were John C. Newby, president; Edward Thistlethwaite, vice-president; T. L. Harris, cashier, and J. E. Kercheval, assistant cashier.

The Union Loan and Trust Company of Sheridan was formed in April, 1903. Officers were John H. Cox, president, and Frank Kassebaum, secretary. The original capital was $25,000.

Finally, the American State Bank of Sheridan was formed June 17, 1914, by the election of the following officers: John Cox, president; John M. Haughey, vice-president; Claudius H. Goff, cashier. The bank has enjoyed continuous growth since its founding. Two milestones in the history of the organization were marked at the close of 1959 when capital accounts reached over the half-million mark. From the original $40,000, the bank's capital has grown to $504,541.63. In addition, the total resources were over the six million mark for the first time in the bank's history.

FIRE DEPARTMENT

EARLY FIRE EQUIPMENT WAS KEPT IN THE SHED AT THE RIGHT

After the fire of 1913, the present town hall and fire station was built at the corner of Cora Avenue and Main Streets. In 1916-17 the Higbee Buggy Company built a body for a converted Model T and a motorized chemical and hose wagon was placed in service. Water mains had previously been laid in 1914 by C. E. Layton.

In 1924 Sheridan became the proud owner of a 500 gallon pumper. At that time, two paid firemen were employed, Charles Hammer and Lenzy Wicker. The first run with the new pumper was to the Mule Barn the day after the truck was delivered. No one could operate the new apparatus and the barn burned.

The Sheridan Fire Dept. as it is known today was organized in 1936 after the fire at the McDonald Hatchery on South Main Street. Edgar Cody, then town marshal, was instrumental in formation of the volunteer fire department. Members of that group as best can be remembered were Edgar Cody, Lester Kercheval, Clyde Burton, Claude Burton, David McMurtry, Kennis Went, Floyd Moore, Earl Thurman, Lawrence Whicker, Bert Walton, William Loring, John Bush, Charles Hammer, Max Dell and William Moss.

Now one of the finest fire departments in the state, the fire department has three paid firemen, sixteen volunteers and eight auxiliary members. Equipment includes a 1947 500-gallon pumper, a 1955 720-gallon pumper, a 1000 tanker and an emergency wagon with modern first aid equipment.

The department services Sheridan, Adams Township and Marion Township (Boone County), and has made outstanding progress in keeping losses at a minimum.

Ladies' Auxiliary

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Volunteer Fire Dept. was organized Feb. 18, 1952, at the home of Eileen McCain. The purpose of this organization is to support and aid the firemen whenever possible.

The Auxiliary furnished the kitchenette and lounge at the fire station, and purchased a stretcher and a two-way radio for the emergency car, in addition to other services.

The first officers were Kathleen McMurtry, president; Alice Sanders, vice-president; Pat McCarty, secretary; Ruby Cody, treasurer. Directors were Eileen McCain and Margaret McMurtry.

Other charter members were Mary Barnes, Helen Butcher, Ruby Carney, Mary Greathouse, Emmalou Leonard, Evelyn Moss, Lois Pickett, Edna Pryor, Rosanna Ross, Martha Spelbring, Arvilla Stafford and June Weston.

THEATRES IN SHERIDAN

THE ROYAL OR NORTH END THEATRE

In the center is Grover Summitt, an early projectionist.

Show business marked its beginning in Sheridan with the completion of the Henry Thistlethwaite Opera Block on the corner of Second and Main Streets in the year 1886. Most of the early shows in this theatre were minstrel, vaudeville and variety acts. Occasionally a stock company would come in with a melodrama or comedy in three acts. The management was always making some allowances for minor variations, but the format of entertainment remained much the same until 1907.

In 1907 two theatres were established in our community. The Royal or North End Theatre was the enterprise of Murry Robinson, and the second theatre, the Merry Widow, was established by Fred Burton and Frank Richardson. The Merry Widow operated for one year and was moved to Zionsville. The Royal or North End Theatre was sold to H. Reddington in 1908, and to Murl Irick in 1909. Later it was sold to Bradfield and Mitchell and to Fred McDonald. McDonald moved the theatre to a wooden building in the approximate location of Pickett's 5c-$1 Store today, and the theatre was finally closed in 1914 because of fire laws.

The Southern Theatre was established and put in operation about 1908 in the north room of the old Union Block, operated by Billy Kercheval and Fred Beard. This theatre was leased to Cliff Fisher and was subsequently closed in 1911.

The Air Dome Theatre, meaning open air or no roof, was also an enterprise of Cliff Fisher. Most of the entertainment was vaudeville and slides. In 1911 a Mr. Caldwell opened the Ideal Theatre south of Fifth Street on the east side, with Charles Spray as proprietor. In 1916 the Ideal was sold to J. A. Tarmar who operated it until 1922, when it was leased to Governor Summitt. The theatre was operated through the summer and fall of that year and then closed forever.

In 1920 G. H. Palmer established the Hippodrome Theatre under the management of Bert Tapp. A few years later the Palmer family assumed management and it was under their operation until 1959, when the theatre was sold to the present owner, Noel Pickett.

From 1907 until 1916 all projectors in theatre here were operated by hand, using calcium light, which gave a flickery appearance to the pictures on the screen. Electric projectors using carbon lights were introduced here in 1916 and produced a more steady picture. Grover Summitt was the projectionist in all the theatres in Sheridan, with the exception of Fisher's Air Dome, covering a span of forty years.

One of the major factors in the early development of Sheridan was the Monon Railroad. The Monon had several other names before the present one was adopted permanently. The company was first chartered January 29, 1880 as the Chicago, Indianapolis and Airline Railway. In April of that same year a contract was made with a Chicago contractor, Henry Crawford, whereby he was to purchase and construct a line of road from Indianapolis to Dyer, Indiana. Prior to this the Chicago, Indianapolis and Delphi Railroad Company had built about forty miles of narrow gauge road between Delphi and Rensselaer which proved unsatisfactory. This line was purchased by the newer company in 1881.

The narrow road was ripped up and replaced, and surveys were conducted between Indianapolis and Delphi, but Sheridan was bypassed due to swampy ground here, surveys going both east and west of this community. A local businessman, Edward Thistlethwaite, heard of the proposed routes and offered the railway free right-of-way through Sheridan. Officials of the road agreed to terms of a contract that all passenger trains stop at Sheridan and all through trains slow to fifteen miles per hour in exchange for the right-of-way.

Upon signing of the contract, construction was begun and the road was completed from Indianapolis to

FIRST SHERIDAN DEPOT

Hammond, Indiana in October, 1882. The line was later completed to the Dearborn Street Station in Chicago in 1884.

When officially opened for traffic, the road offered the best in passenger and freight service. This line provided the means of buying and selling in the big city markets, opening a new era in Sheridan's economy. Mills and factories were built along the right-of-way.

The Monon changed Sheridan social pattern and way of life, becoming synonymous with happy destinations and providing travel for the enjoyment of all.

One of the most colorful trains on the line in those early days was "The Plug," which older residents would hasten to nominate as the most reliant and dependable train that ever carried a passenger.

The road served its purpose well for seventy-five years. But the coming of automobiles, trucks and other modes of transportation led to curtailing of train activity on the Monon. Passenger service was discontinued in 1959 and freight runs substantially cut. Time has erased the coal smoke, the shrill whistle, the thunderous roar, the hissing steam and the joyous crowds at the station, but deep in the minds of the older generation lies buried the image of the steam locomotive—a symbol of another age.

NEWSPAPERS OF SHERIDAN

THE SHERIDAN NEWS OFFICE IN THE 1890s

Sheridan has been served by the present newspaper, the Sheridan News, or by the predecessors of this paper for more than three-quarters of a century. The first newspaper to be published here was the Sheridan Argus, published and edited by Mr. Cox and J. E. Walker in 1882. The first copy was sold for five dollars to Dr. H. E. Davenport. The original plant was destroyed by fire in 1889, the same year in which the present newspaper office was built.

The second paper to enter the Sheridan scene was the Air Line News, first published in Kirklin, and so named because it was distributed in various communities along the Monon Railroad. This paper was moved to Sheridan and the name was changed to the Enterprise. The paper was edited by a Mr. Manlove.

Several newspapers entered the Sheridan scene during the last decade of the nineteenth century. Included in this group were the Sheridan Standard, published in 1894 by I. N. Morrison, the Sheridan Call, also published in 1894 by E. E. Scott, and the Sheridan Chronicle published for a few months in 1898 by Wesley Cox.

Also in 1898 the Enterprise and the Argus were merged to form the Sheridan News. Two other papers were published here after the turn of the century. I. H. McMurtry published the Sheridan Sun from 1902 to 1904, before joining the Sheridan News in 1905. In November, 1912 the Hamilton County Progressive was published here in support of the famed Bull Moose campaign, but the paper ceased publication in December, 1913. It was edited by F. T. Kercheval.

The present paper was edited at various times during its early days by Cal Gault, D. J. McMath, O. H. Moudy, G. W. Scott, Mr. Perry and N. W. Cowgill. When he joined his paper, the Sun, with the News in 1905, I. H. McMurtry became editor of the Sheridan News, a position which he occupied until his death in August, 1958 after serving the newspaper profession in Sheridan for well over half a century. His son, D. B. McMurtry is presently editor of the Sheridan News.

MAY THE NEXT HUNDRED YEARS BE

BIGGER and BETTER

Congratulations, Sheridan on your 100th Anniversary!

A HUNDRED YEARS AGO, when Sheridan was founded, communications were still primitive. A letter, a messenger or, perhaps, even an Indian smoke signal, just about covered the range of choice if one wanted to send a message. The telephone wasn't even an idea. But in 1875 Dr. Alexander Graham Bell discovered how to send the voice over wires, and on March 10, 1876, he sent the first complete sentence. The telephone was born.

TODAY, most families in the Sheridan area enjoy the convenience and security of telephone service—and the number increases year by year.

LOOKING AHEAD—it is our whole-hearted desire to contribute our full share toward the prosperity and progress of the Sheridan community, helping to make it an even happier one in which to live and work.

CHURCHES IN SHERIDAN

First Christian Church

The first Christian Church of Sheridan was organized by Rev. Abram Plunkett of Crawfordsville, Indiana in 1885. At the present site the first church was constructed and dedicated in 1886. In 1902 was remodeled and rededicated and W. D. Bartle became the first resident minister.

In 1910 the church board decided to build a new house of worship. Construction was started and the building was finished in February, 1911, costing 17,500.

The present membership is 510.

During the past seventy-five years the church has offered training and inspiration to the youth of the community. The plea of the Christian Church has always been for Christian Unity on the basis of "Where the Book speaks, we speak, where the Book is silent, we are silent."

EARLY CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Methodist Church

The Millwood Methodist Episcopal Church was organized by the Rev. William Peck and the Rev. R. A. Newton, both pastors of the Boxley charge, in 1867-68. This new society met in the school house just south of the present church site. The first church building was constructed in 1875 with one of the most elaborate spires rising to the height of seventy-seven feet. After forty years of service this building was removed in favor of the present brick structure which was dedicated November 4, 1917.

EARLY METHODIST CHURCH

Wesleyan Methodist Church

The Wesleyan Methodist Church of Sheridan formed their organization in 1880, under the leadership of W. H. Kennedy. This church and the one at Boxley were united together in the same circuit. A building was erected in 1889, and destroyed in 1913 by fire. A new one was erected at once of brick structure and finished the same year.

WESLEYAN CHURCH—BUILT IN 1914

Friends Church

The Friends Church was founded in the summer of 1888 by the Rev. William Haworth. The meetings were held in the south room of the upper story of the Union Block until January 1899. At that date the meetings were moved to a new building in another location. In 1915 a new church was erected and dedicated the same year.

The Church of God, Church of the Nazarene and Bible Church were established in more recent years.

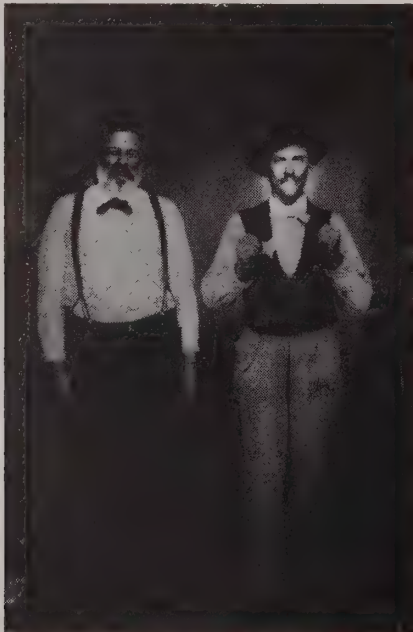

ATTORNEYS

Many men have practiced law in Sheridan during its first century. Rather vague reports show that a man named Jay Voss may have been the first person to practice law in Millwood and possibly after the name was changed to Sheridan.

Charles W. Griffin was probably the first qualified attorney to practice law here, opening an office in 1883. His office was located in the building known at the time as the Thistlethwaite building over what is now Beard Bros. Appliance Store. Mr. Griffin practiced law in that location until his death in 1919.

George W. Osborn came to Sheridan about the year 1907 and opened a law office in the Pritsch Cement Block Building. He later moved his office to the building at Fifth and Georgia Streets where he lost his law books in the fire of 1913. After occupying an office over the Sheridan News for a short time, Osborn moved to his present location in the bank building in 1914, where he is still engaged in active practice. He served one term as Hamilton County Prosecutor.

Roland Griffin moved to Sheridan about 1912, becoming a secretary and partner in the office of his father, Charles W. Griffin. After his father's retirement, Griffin moved to an office over the Farmer's and Merchant's Bank, where he practiced until the Bank closed, at which time he moved to his present location at 414 Main Street. He has served two terms as prosecuting attorney.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE

Many justices of the peace have served in Sheridan through the years, few for too long a term.

Probably the most notable of these was Samuel Wesley Moore, who was known to people of the area as "Squire Moore." He served as justice of the peace here for about 27 years, beginning in the 1880's or early 1890's.

Also notable by the length of their terms were Abraham Steffey, who served for 10 to 15 years, A. M. Stephenson, who also acted as justice of the peace for some 10 to 15 years, and Clark Colby who held the position four or five years.

SECOND WARD SCHOOL—1895

The first school in the Sheridan area was constructed by George Boxley for the purpose of educating his own children and those of his neighbors. Boxley himself was the teacher. This first building was constructed on Pioneer Hill, using logs. A fireplace stood at one end and the windows were covered with greased paper to admit the light, the paper being fastened with sticks across. The seats were split out and hand shaved, with wooden pins for legs. The doors were of shaved boards. The schoolmaster's desk was a long plank on pins in the wall. Daily classes in this first school were of short duration.

The Boxley school was succeeded in 1850 by the Dunn school, constructed on what was called the Rodeman corner on what is now East Second Street. Jeremiah Dunn, owner of the property, taught here until 1861 when he was succeeded by Isaac Underwood, the teacher in 1861-62. Other teachers during the lifetime of the school were Jonas Pearson in 1863, Harriett Thistlethwaite in 1863-64, and Lydia Burris in 1865-68. The property was donated by Dunn to Adams Township for school purposes in 1865.

In 1869 a two-room addition was made and the first Adams Township School came into being. The first teacher in this structure was Ellis A. Hutchens who was later to serve a long and influential term as Hamilton County School Superintendent. This school was abandoned in 1885 and the Second Ward School was constructed in 1886 where the Community Center now stands.

Growing school population caused the erection in 1895 of the First Ward or North school building. An addition was made to this school in 1912 for the purpose of a high school, but the building was destroyed in 1928 by fire.

The present combined grade and high school was constructed in 1930 and additions to the structure have been made on two occasions to the present time. Construction of the building was completed under Ingle R. Harris, who was trustee at that time. Advisory board members were W. S. Bradfield, S. H. Campbell and Phil E. Hare.

Some of the early day superintendents were John F. Haines, T. L. Harris, C. A. Peterson, David Wells, M. H. Stuart, Charles Mendenhall, Abraham Bowers, E. J. Llewelyn, Roscoe Beals, H. L. Moreland and James W. Kirk.

EPISODE ONE

"The Sheridan Story"

This is the American Story . . . and the story of the Sheridan Community . . . it is an epic of a tidal wave of freedom-loving men and women, sweeping on to a new world, rich with natural resources beyond the dreams of the ages. With dauntless courage, they dared the unknown; with flashing axe they widened its trails and cleared its great expanses; with unceasing determination they built a new era in civilization and built our great Community of Sheridan.

PIONEER FAMILY

EPISODE TWO

"The Men of Destiny"

For countless Moons, the Red Men have lived in their tepee-studded villages, criss-crossed by the hunting paths which follow the White River. Here on the green banks of the moving stream the Miami, fished, then roamed through the prairie seeking wild game, while the women tend to the growing maize. . . . Then into their primitive atmosphere there comes a new and strange pale-faced White Man. Thus we observe the Red Man with his living soon to change.

EPISODE THREE

"George Boxley—Founder of Sheridan"

George Boxley, 1780-1865, was the first white man to make permanent settlement in what is now known as Sheridan, or in Adams Township. Boxley chose this wild and uninhabited part of the country because he was a fugitive from justice; a man who had run ahead of the law for years, with many close escapes, a price of three thousand dollars on his head. In this almost impassable country he could easily escape detection, for passers-by were rare.

EPISODE FOUR

"Unto This Land"

In 1827, George Boxley built a cabin on the knoll north, and adjacent to, the present site of Sheridan. An excavation was made in the ground about four feet deep and fifteen feet square and his cabin set over the hole. The knoll was known for years as "Boxley's Retreat," and "Pioneer Hill." His money was much diminished, but he had the two ox carts that had brought them there, and some cattle. His family responded to the hard life. The Boxley family prospered, their holdings grew and soon they had neighbors.

GEORGE BOXLEY'S FAMILY

Mr. and Mrs. James Hammer and family.

EPISODE FIVE

"New Neighbors"

The American emigrant now appeared on the scene, hauling in his rude covered wagon the elements of Nineteenth Century Progress. We see a typical covered wagon train planning to "rest a bit and stretch a mite!" In each wagon going west were various plans and ambitions . . . some of them hopes and a few of them still dreams; many religions and ten times as many prayers.

George Boxley welcomes the band of pioneers . . . and news from the East . . . many things happen in a day of a wagon train going West. A traveling trapper appears on the scene, tunes up his fiddle, and the pioneer settlers engage in a lively square dance which "kinda tops off the day's labors."

EPISODE SIX

"The Seventh Day"

When the pioneers came to this land they brought not only their beliefs in Democracy and freedom of opportunity, but they brought with them their beliefs in God and Freedom of Worship. In 1837, the Methodists first began to hold meetings in private homes. The Society of the Christian Church was organized at an early day and had the only church building. With difference for all faiths and with reference to none, we present this scene of our ancestors as they bow their heads in the wilderness worship.

EPISODE SEVEN

"The Dawn of Education"

Schools were one of the earliest institutions in Sheridan of which tradition leaves an account. These traditions soon led to the founding of schools, for although many of our early citizens were of limited education, they realized the importance of schools in the lives of their children. School history in Sheridan begins with a log house built by George Boxley on Pioneer Hill. He himself was the teacher. The school had a fireplace at one end, the windows were covered with greased paper, fastened with sticks across, to admit light.

EPISODE EIGHT

"The Flight to Freedom"

George Boxley never ceased to fight slavery. From one of his cellars he made a cave-like room, to be used for a station of the Underground Railway. Near 1845 he had use for it, when a negro man and woman with their small child was transferred from another station to his. He concealed them there that night and then sent them on further North to eventual freedom. How frequent this station was used in the following twenty years is not known.

EPISODE NINE

"The Volume in Black"

Our town was starting to grow, when like a thunderbolt in the dark—our nation became divided! The War between the States left many scars and the people of Sheridan felt deeply the tragedy of the dissolution of the Union. When Ft. Sumter, at Charleston, South Carolina, was fired upon, Lincoln issued his call for troops and Adams Township was the first township in the county to respond. It had an unusually large number of enlisted men. Adams Township men were in a great many Corps, but Company H, of the Fifty-seventh, was composed almost entirely of local men.

CAST OF CHARACTER FROM EPISODE SIX.

The William Smith Post No. 103 of the Grand Army on the Republic was Chartered in 1879, with J. P. Bradfield as First Commander. An added note about Bradfield is that he would dress as Uncle Sam for special occasions. He had a suit made of small flags, and a high top hat with a large flag on the side of it. He always gave the Gettysburg Address every Memorial Day at the Cemetery in Sheridan.

J. P. BRADFIELD

Evan Kendall.

The Women's Relief Corps, Post 54, was granted a charter in 1887, with "Aunt Jane" Kercheval, whose husband was John S. Kercheval, of Company H, the famous fifty-seventh Regiment, as first Commander. It is the oldest Woman's organization, very active until recently, and a driving force in the community.

"AUNT JANE" KERCHEVAL

Eunice Kendall.

EPISODE TEN

"Renaming the Town"

Boxley's Swamps was surveyed by N. W. Essington in 1866, and renamed the town of Millwood. In that year it was laid out by Egbert Higbee, who had settled with his parents on a farm northeast in 1836, into an addition containing 20 city lots. He later laid out more additions. In 1866, because of another Millwood on the new railroad route, it became necessary to rename the town. Many Millwood men rode with General Phil Sheridan in the war; in deference to them and their Continuing loyalty to Sheridan, this name was incorporated.

EPISODE ELEVEN

"The Coming of the Railroad"

The Iron Horse came chugging down the tracks in 1840. The route had earlier been surveyed to the west, and Edward Thistlethwaite then contacted the railroad officials and by offering them free right of way persuaded them to re-survey the road and bring it through town, which immediately started a small land boom caused its growth. The line at that time was known as the Chicago, Indianapolis and Airline Railroad and was commonly known as the Airline. Later it was to become known as the Monon Railroad.

EPISODE TWELVE

"High Button Shoes"

Changes were taking place all over the country as the Twentieth Century Dawned. . . . In Sheridan, the merchants were putting in plate glass windows; electric lights came in 1896. Life moves at a faster pace. Here we are at a 4th of July Picnic . . . sometime around the turn of the century. You just had to sample your friend's lunch. You were wearing your derby and top trousers . . . she was wearing those "leg-o'-mutton" sleeves! Before the day was over you had your Tin-type taken. Everybody was having a grand time.

PHINIAS G. PEARSON

P. G. Pearson was born near Oak Hill, Ohio in 1825. His parents moved and settled on a farm in 1836 across the road from the Egbert Higbee homeplace. P. G. Pearson grew to manhood knowing the country's loneliness and grandeur, its promises and danger. It was due to his influence and integrity that the raw frontier vanished into the realm of civilization. He was always known as the first citizen because he opened the first store in Millwood, which was a Harness Shop. He owned and operated the first Grist Mill, also helped to promote the first saw mill. For all of his services he was considered the most patriotic leader in Millwood. He was one of the first men to enlist in the Civil War. May he rest in peace.

WORKING TOGETHER FOR 100 YEARS

1860 - - - - 1960

For the past 100 years, the city of Sheridan has been the working partner of the farm folks in Hamilton, Boone, Clinton, and Tipton counties, contributing greatly to both the economic and social progress of the area.

For most of those same 100 years, the Indianapolis Stock Yards has also been a working partner with the livestock growers and feeders of the area, working for them to get the most for every hoof of livestock.

All of us at the Indianapolis Stock Yards congratulate Sheridan on a century of service and progress, and at the same time we look forward with great anticipation to the century ahead. We are sure Sheridan will continue to grow and flourish as the economic and social center of its trade area.

At the same time we are looking forward to another century of association with the livestock growers and feeders of the area whenever they have livestock to sell.

During the months and years ahead, these progressive livestock selling agencies, all members of the Indianapolis Stock Yards Marketing Institute, stand ready to serve you at any time and assist you with your marketing problems.
